“ I am sorry this is so late, but I figured better late than never. I served under Chief Bostic when were with VAL4 in Vietnam. I really the Chief because he got things done without beating us up to make himself look good. If we worked hard and got the job done, we were good to go. I had a lot of respect for him and that makes life, even in Vietnam, a lot easier.
I just wanted to let you know how much he was liked and respected, and that I am sorry for your loss. "Fair winds and following seas".

“ I hope someone is sent an email or text about my comment. I am going to reference him as Chief, since that is the way I always addressed him. I was stationed with him in VAL-4 in Vietnam. I was an ordnanceman, and he was my shop chief. My memory is a little cloudy, so I don't remember dates all that well. I don't remember if he was there when I arrived or not, so I don't remember how long I served under him.

I really like Chief Bostick. He was very pleasant...as long as the work got done. He didn't put up with any...well, you know, from the officers. If it was a fair request or the situation deemed it, he was more that happy to assist. But if he was just throwing his weight around, the Chief let him know.

What really inspired this comment was the fact that will looking at Navy photos online, I spotted the Chief's name three times. There was a picture of him early on when he was in VP-8 https://vp8alumni.org/VP8_Alumni_Photos/Photos1960s/960%20Meier%20&%20Bostick.jpg

He was also mentioned in a post, that the Chief was present with the crew that found the space capsule that Sam, the money went into space in... 12/4/59. I felt that will all of these sightings online, I needed to see if he was still living. It appeared he lived a full life, and for that I am very glad. I hope you get this, as it may add some added history to a good man's life. I apologize for the picture below. No matter how I cropped it, this format chopped the top.

“ Sharon, our thoughts and prayers are with you at this time. Cecil was a special cousin and will be missed. We had some good times on the boat fishing or whatever. Dale and him would get to talking about their service days and where they had been. Great stories. Lot of memories. He will be missed.
