“ I knew David from junior high school and high school. He was good friend and a comedian at times. Rest in peace my friend.

“ Our Boss - David was unflappable in the spot light. Despite a lack of punctuality at big meetings, Dave would always arrive just in time to convincingly address any issue with complete confidence, skill, and respectability. This practice prompted me to comment to Dave that he was just like the US Cavalry - " Never on time, always in the nick of time." Dave just smiled back at me like he owned the dub. David had what the military refers to as the three Cs of leadership - Character, Competence, and Commitment. Dave knew his business better than anyone, and had the strength of character to be successful. He was fully committed to the organization and to his team. A great Boss and friend.

“ I had the privilege of working with Dave for about 5 years on the UASI project for Tampa Bay homeland security in the wake of 9-11. I'm not sure what he thought of my just being just dropped on him with no input from him for project support, but he welcomed me graciously and always treated me and my contribution to the effort with the greatest of respect. He was by far one of the most intelligent and dedicated people I've worked with, and his loss is society's loss as he made the world a better place by being here on earth. My deepest sympathies and condolences to his family, whom he loved beyond measure. My heart is broken for you all, and as a now-seasoned widow for whom David was a source of support, especially for you, Kelly. RIP, David, my friend.

“ Dave was about 11 or 12, and riding the hand-me-down bicycle that my sisters had owned first, which was purple metallic sparkle paint with a white bench seat and a tall sissy bar. He went Speeding down the steep hill we lived on, and found at the bottom that he had no brakes. There was a city bus parked at the end of the street taking on and letting off passengers, and Dave laid the bike down and slid under the bus between the wheels. He came back up the street carrying the bike, which had broken into two pieces right at the down tube. He carried the two halves of the bike upstairs and when Dad got home he asked him if he could fix it.
