Your smile, kind words, yes mam/no mam, loving our cousin Peggy and her boys like you did, coming to see us in Louisiana, are some of the things we can never forget. “ My first real memory of you is being in good ole Dr. Gatliff’s office. I don’t remember why we were there. We frequented him for sickness, inoculations, and whatever ailed us physically or otherwise. You stood quietly beside your mother and sister (who was in a baby carrier). I know, ironically... quiet. I was not sure who you were. I must have asked my mother who those people were because her words were, “That is Donna and your cousins Randy and Tammy.” Funny the things we can recall after so many years... decades ago. When she said that, I knew who you were and knew you ever since and not just in a picture.

We have a genetic “sweetness” that is passed down through the Dixon make up. I didn’t get it. Haha. Our sweet Papa had it. I didn’t really know Uncle Dale, but I believe he had it. It skipped over many, including Steve, Kevin and myself. Yeah, I said it. It isn’t we couldn’t BE sweet. Of course we could. It just isn’t a natural occurrence as it is with those who truly possess it.

You had every right to be bitter. Life had a way of bringing the most challenging things to your plate. I know there were times anger bubbled up but you always kept that genuine sweet nature, even in the worst of times.

Thanks to our Papa, who could foresee past the moment and help us establish our connection, I know the bond we have continues through eternity. I am so grateful for his determination to keep our ties tight. Words are not needed between us. We both know what we mean to each other. We did not have to talk every day in order to pick up exactly where we were. It just happens.

An officer in one of your news clips, he said it best. He said you were the sweetest man he knew. You always have been a sweetheart, truly. I am proud of you for not being struck out standing at the plate. You went down swinging. I love you, bro. You are an amazing guy. This isn’t goodbye. It’s just till until we talk again.

“ One weekend me and Jamie were supposed to spend the weekend in Zephyrhills with Randy. When we got to the dirt road he lived on we ducked down in the seats when he drove up on a friend's four-wheeler. His dad told him we couldn't come up. In a teenage temper tantrum he went speeding off mad and ran into a box truck... And that's how he broke his arms as a kid.
