“ John was a faithful, good neighbor and friend. We were able to share conversations, reading materials, jokes and hints on how to achieve a blissful life. John would occasionally wander over to my side of the street when he had mastered a new joke that he was anxious to try out. He would always leave me at least smiling and often laughing. I tried to keep up, but he was always points ahead. He had a self-deprecating sense of humor, but I learned that there was much more to him than he usually displayed. As often happens to those of us who have lived long and lost many friends and loved ones, I am sure that from time to time some reminder of something said, seen or remembered will remind me of John, and I most certainly will smile. “ I remember John fondly from my days working with him at Porter Paints. He was always good for a laugh about his various interactions during the day. Absolutely one of the nicest men I've met. I just regret losing touch with him after I left the company in 1997.

John Mack was an upbeat person, who would always offer humor in any situation. He was a good man. So sorry to hear of loss

“ Years ago, I had the pleasure of working with John at the Big Bend Power Station. He was one of my most trusted security officers. He was respected and admired by all his peers and supervisors alike.

He had a way of handling things that worked better than any book could teach by using his wit, wisdom, and marvelous use of vocabulary to quickly handle even diverse situations.

He could also turn away trouble makers quickly and efficiently and they would be 1/2 way back to their car before they realized he had called them a fool 3 different ways.

He was such a comedian at times we went home with a sore chest from laughing so hard. He could make the lousiest day a day to enjoy by being around him.

Years later I ended up working for him moonlighting with another company and he was one of the best supervisors I ever had.. Fair, honest, and played on a straight field..

I to this day as a supervisor, use some of his methods and have a team like no other working under me because of what I took away with me from working with John.

He was a man from a mold that I dont believe can, or could ever be duplicated.

Wherever he is now, I bet he has them all in stitches! :)

Hand Salute, To Master Security Officer: John M. Mack.
