“ My heart and prayers out to all of Robin's family and friends. I know that she brought happiness to everyone that she knew. She will be missed by many, but her memory will always be very much alive in the hearts of her loved ones. The time that our family has shared with Robin has been a blessing, and the love that she shared with my brother and his children was truly a gift.

“ Robin,

From the moment you opened the door of your apartment on our first date I knew. Though your eyes were troubled by such a hurtful past, I could see that tiny spark deep within your soul begging to be pulled to the surface. You were nervous and timid, and I knew that it would take gentle hands and heart to bring you back to the woman I knew from childhood.

Remember our first dinner? Carrabas in Plant City. You had the pasta caraba and I had that chicken dish with the goat cheese. You cringed at the thought of the goat cheese lol, but you smiled that smile and never took your eyes off of me through all of our conversations.

We stayed on facebook chat until sunrise three days straight catching up on old times, fully knowing we had to work each day, then rushed back home to do it all over again. I know you kept ever conversation, every private message, and so did I. As each day passed I watched your spirit grow, your confidence and trust strengthen, and I always remembered to handle you with kid gloves.

There was the time I asked to go to Lowes to buy some lumber and you asked me what for. When I told you I wanted to build you a pedestal you wept and held me so tight that our hearts began to match rythm. Not a moment, not a millisecond, did I ever second guess that you were my all and my everything.

I tried to be patient, but the simple truth is, I was afraid I would lose my chance, so I rushed you off to the lighthouse and proposed to you. On shaky knee you cried and said yes! We walked barefoot in the sand along the water's edge watching the sun sink below the horizon, then held each other close listening to the birds and waves.

The day you married me was like a fairytale, and how we pulled off such a beautiful ceremony on such a tight budget could only have been by the hand of our great God. We laughed, loved, and lived on that honeymoon in St. Augustine even though it was in the thirties and raining.

I remember that night, you ordered chicken wings, and when I wasn't paying attention you smeared the hot sauce all over your face! And it was hilarious too, except for the part when it started to burn! Okay, to be honest baby, that was kind of funny too. I never knew what to expect with your sense of humor, but I always knew you had something up your sleeve to make me smile and laugh. It was your way of proving your love to me and I am eternally grateful.

We lived Robin. We lived a life that others only dream of. You taught me not to focus on the material world, to live my life with a passion and intensity that I never thought I had in me. Our road trips to nowhere, our cruises and vacations, were always an adventure right out of a dream. There are so many stories of laughter and love that I hold in my shattered heart. So many memories of your beautiful eyes and smile that will never leave me. The way you loved me, the incredible desire you had to please me, and the fragility of needing me consume my memories.

On Saturday we will lay your empty shell to rest in grand fashion my love. But your soul and your spirit will always remain. I know you are watching over me, I am confident that you will continue to lift me up on those bad days, and most of all I am certain that you know I love you now and forever. I miss you darling, more with every passing breath, and I beg you to wait patiently for me to run to your side as I pass through Heaven's gate. I don't know when God will make that decision, just as we didn't know he would take you so soon, but I assure you my dear I am coming, one fine day, and we will trip the lights fantastic. Rest well, live large, laugh often, and above all say hello from time to time to comfort me.

*Your Loving Husband and Best Friend
Always and Forever,*

Danny

Robin was a very special lady, and love life but I believe she is loving Heaven more. I remember when she and Danny got engaged, I sent her a message " saying wait a minute Robbin you have to ask all the old ladies of the Lakes if You can have him." Her reply was OK phyllis can I have him. You have to wait a few minutes untill we take a vote. Then came back to tell her we all voted yes because we didn't think he could ever do this good again. We love and miss you Robin and you will be in our hearts forever. Look up my to boys Josh and Jccob and tell them Gran misses them very much and I love them very much. Hve a wonderful day in Heaven.

I realize that I have missed a great blessing by now getting to know Robin better, but I've heard her mother-in-law sing her praises many, many times - "flowers for the living." It's been very uplifting and a witness to the Lord just to hear all the beautiful tributes to this great young woman. My prayers have been, are, and shall be with the entire family.
