“ Sarah Jane I couldn't believe what I was hearing about you But my worse fears were, confirmed to be true It all came back so fast to me I closed my eyes and your face I could see Memories of you flooded my mind I felt so lost, I felt in a bind I visualized us walking to get in the pool Remembered the morning I took you to school I saw me plating your hair to get you on your way I can still see your sweet face asking could you go play You were always so thoughtful & trying to help out Remembering how you bleached the colors and we couldn't shout I could never forget the scream that came from you The time you ate those peppers & touched your eyes I was so scared I almost didn't know what to do I can still see us sitting and doing homework together Making sure you knew everything so you'd only get better My only wish is that I had saw you before this I would of held you tight and gave you a big kiss Now all I have is pictures of you I look at you every morning wishing, There was something I could do##imported-begin##Melissa Zimmerman##imported-end##
