“ Pops will be deeply missed , always a kind word. Even though I was not his daughter by blood because my Brother and my sisters and I had different dads he always kissed my cheek told me how beautiful I was and that I should have been his daughter as well and he loved me. My husband always loved to play music with him?

“ I was working on a guitar one day when He stopped by with his daughter to see what was going on. He saw the guitar and a great freindship began.As time went by he'd teach me a guitar lick and we'd laugh and sing. He was a fix it man, Lani bought him a cheap golf cart, everybody said it needed new batteries because the old ones could not be charged, I put a good seat on it and Dusty helped me pull it over to Lani"s. The next day Mr. Sammons had it running, simply amazing.I'm already missing a kind word and the offer of a stiff drink.. Seeya later Guitarman # 1 in the land R.I.P.

He has always loved the sunsets on the water. He would watch them on the Suwannee River, the beaches, when he lived in Tampa we would grab devil crabs and go sit by the water. (I'm sure Lani & Dusty remember a devil crab and sunsets) but there was something about the lake that he loved from the very first time I took him there!!

“ I loved it when dad would say "I love you the most" and I'd say but I love you more. And he would say "impossible". Sometimes when he was feeling bad he'd say ok you win this time Lol. It's the memories that all of sudden are more precious than one could've even imagine, until that's all you've got left!

I love how he would be feeling really bad, but how just holding his hand could seem to settle him down because he loved it. Or I could just start combing his hair and it would relax him.

When I'd talk to him on the phone at night or whenever we were saying goodbye. It was never just goodbye. Dad, Dusty, Jack and I would have to sing Happy trails to you until we meet again..... As Dusty and Jack were always close by keeping an eye on dad.

dad would sing "last night I dreamed an angel came" (I saw a man) he sang it more and more frequent as the days lingered on. He could be in what seemed to be a good sleep mode and all of a sudden he'd be singing this song.

The doctors would come in the room and ask do you know who this is and he'd say well of course I do that's my baby. He never forgot who we were. He would be in stages of where he didn't seem to know much and I'd say dad do you know Who I am and he'd say well that's just a silly question. I would never forget any of my children. Your my baby girl Ravanna.

*I love and miss you very much dad,
Your baby girl, Ravanna*
