“ William Llano-Sierra left this world on August 16, 2025, but not before leaving a legacy of laughter, love, and legendary dad jokes that could make even a stone statue chuckle. Whether he was misplacing his glasses while they were on his head or insisting that pineapple absolutely belongs on pizza (a hill he was willing to die on), William had a knack for turning ordinary moments into unforgettable memories. He was the kind of man who'd show up to a formal event in flip-flops “for comfort and rebellion,” and somehow still steal the spotlight. His heart was as big as his collection of novelty mugs, and his wisdom—often disguised as sarcasm—will echo in the lives of everyone lucky enough to know him. William cheered louder than the sound system and gave unsolicited life advice to every teen within a 10-foot radius. “Don't trust anyone who says they ‘don't like dogs,’” he warned one graduate, solemnly. His presence turned a formal ceremony into a comedy special, and his heartfelt pride was matched only by his ability to photobomb every family picture. That day, William wasn't just a guest—he was the unofficial mascot of joy, wisdom, and wonderfully weird energy. He said “Jonathan, the sky is the limit, your future is bright”, and you can be anything you want to be. Rest easy, William. Heaven just got a whole lot funnier.

“ William always had a way of making people feel good when he was around them. Even in the toughest situations, he could find a lighthearted way to diffuse tension or sadness. I remember when I started going to school, in this country, not knowing anybody and with a very broken english, William gave me the support that I would never imagine I could get from someone. He always told me take one day at a times, now it seems hard but when the least you expected you will be graduating and ready for the world. And boy was he right? He never left my side guiding me and giving me advices. When I finished school, he wrote my first resume and thanks to that I landed my first Engineering job after graduating. There are so many anecdotes to tell but I would never finish if I wrote them all, this is just a small sample of the human being that William was. William was like my Father, he was always there when I needed him and in moments of joy and achievements I always made sure he was there, celebrating with me like the Father he was to me. There is no description at all of the immense pain I feel, a large piece of me left on Saturday, August 16th, unfortunately that horrible date will never be forgotten. But neither will I forget the good times, the love and compassion that you had towards me and my family, that is why I chose you as the Godfather of my three children.

what better person than you? You left me my hero, and it hurts me so much for not having told you that I love you one last time. I always thought that you were invincible and maybe I even die before you, how wrong I was, and now my mind punishes me knowing that I didn't tell you how much I loved you one last time but I know that you're listening to me, and with all my strength and my heart I shout to the world that I love you Father and I'm more than sure that we will see each other again and this time will be forever, we will never be apart again and we will enjoy everything and we'll pick up right where we left off. I love you, I will love you forever and ever. See you soon my Compadre my Father Willy!
